Free Entry to SA National Parks: 18—22 September 2017

From Monday next week, all South African residents can enjoy free entry into almost all South African National Parks. The only exceptions are Namaqua National Park and the Boulders Penguin Colony in Table Mountain National Park.

This concession excludes Foreign guests, overnight guests, tour operators and open safari vehicles. They will be required to pay normal conservation fees.

Pre-booking fees for day visit reservations are not discounted and must still be paid on all pre-booked day visit reservations where applicable.

(For more information, visit www.sanparks.org, or contact the KLCBT office for bookings and enquiries)

4 Fantastic business events lined up for the next week, book today!

It is certainly not everyday that you will see speakers of this caliber visiting our area, and so many of them in just a few days, is certainly a bonus. Members must please grab this opportunity to get inspiration for the next few months of the year and attend at least one of these sessions:

Brand Pretorius will talk about Effective Leadership on the 15th at Church Unlimited.

Dr Roelof Botha will present the Real State of the Nation on the 19th at Nou's Toeka.

Dawie Roodt's talk, The Future is Freedom will take place on the 20th at Bundu Lodge.

And to top it all off, the LWO Employers Organisation will host a FREE labour law workshop on the 21st at the Nelspruit Hotel & Conf. Centre.

(Visit our website www.klcbt.co.za to get the details about these events.)

Lots of entertainment and festivities this weekend

The Agfo Expo has started at Casterbridge in White River and will spoil Lowvelders with entertainment and interesting exhibitions until Saturday.

The World Aerobic Championships finals will take place this weekend at Malalane and it is the first time ever this event is hosted on African soil.

Ladies can enjoy a morning with Annique at Bundu Lodge on Saturday.

Visit the regular markets at Nelacres, Halls Gateway and Kaapschehoop.
